Edison's Latest Inventions.

Thomas A. Edison, the electrical wizard, has just completed two inventions before the wonderful far-reaching results of which all his other remarkable discoveries are comparatively insignificant.

One is the practical application of electricity to great railroad lines, by which speed beyond anything achieved by steam may be attained, and the other the application of electricity to the propulsion of street cars without the use of the dangerous, unsightly and inconvenient overhead constructions.

For two years Mr. Edison has been engaged on experiments in this direction. He has met with almost insuperable difficulties, but he has stuck to his work with that dogged pertinacity for which he is famous, and at last he has been successful.

The general principle of the street car invention is that the electric current passes down through one line of rails, is picked up by the car, passes through the motor beneath it, and goes out on the other side and returns through the other line or rails to the central power station.

At the first thought the bare idea of this is paradoxical. The question will naturally occur why the electric current does not dissipate itself in the ground. To this no positive reason can be assigned except the bare statement that it does not. In general terms the effect is accomplished by having the current one of the low voltage or pressure. It is a well-settled principle of electrical resistance that the higher the voltage the greater must be the insulation, and that the lower the voltage can be brought the less need of insulation. Mr. Edison's experiments have all been in this direction—that is to say, in the endeavor to construct a motor sufficiently powerful to do the work, in which the voltage was reduced to so low a point that the natural tendency of the electric current to fly off to the ground and be dissipated would be overcome, and the passage through the motor to the opposite rail would be easier for the current than to pass through the ground to the central station.

The plan of having a central rail for the return current was experimented on for a long time, but when the motor had been perfected so that it would work efficiently Mr. Edison found that he could dispense with the central rail and return the current directly to the station through the opposite rail.

The experiments were conducted at the great laboratory in West Orange. Here an experimental track, nearly a quarter of a mile long, was constructed through the laboratory yard down to the yard of the Edison Phonograph Works. In its length it presented all the various kinds of difficulties that actual use would encounter. A part of it was laid on a very heavy grade of nearly three hundred feet to the mile, there were several sharp curves in the road, and a portion of it ran through a sunken spot where the track could be flooded with water or covered with mud. In this way all the varying conditions of actual use were provided.

The experiments have now been fully completed, and the invention passes out of the first experimental stage into the second stage, its adaptation to practical work. The experiments have been made by Mr. Edison for the Edison Electric Light Company, and until Mr. Edison has turned the invention over to that company for actual work, the minute details of the invention are of necessity withheld from the public. Enough however has been said to show the character of the invention. The voltage of the current employed will be, as has been said, very low, less than 100, while the average voltage of the overhead trolley is in excess of 500. From this it will be seen how great a revolution the new invention will effect in the whole matter of electric traction. Several prominent horse railroad systems have offered their lines to the Edison General Electric Company for the introduction of the invention, and it is probable that selection will be made in the near future, and arrangements made to put the first practical experimental line in operation.

The most remarkable feature of the invention is the "pick ups," that take the current from one line of rails. A novel and ingenious mechanism has been so arranged that it will work with perfect certainty and effect through six inches of mud or slush or water.

Mr. Edison's other great discovery is to obviate the difficulty met in the attainment of high speed on the ordinary steam railway, which is the interference of steam. The injection and exhaust of the steam into and from the cylinders is so rapid in its alternation that beyond a certain limit it is impossible to work, and this is an inherent defect in all steam propulsion because of the necessity of the conversion of reciprocating motion into rotary motion. In the new electric motor this difficulty vanishes, and the limit of speed is only that of the endurance of the machinery and the strength of the tracks.

With this invention of Mr. Edison's a speed of 100 miles or more an hour will be more easily attainable than the ordinary speed of fifty to sixty miles an hour. This is also in the hands of the Edison General Electric Company, and negotiations are now in progress for the application of the system to one of the long lines of railway.—(New York Herald.)

Wild Life in the Snow.

Snow, remarks the London Spectator an observer of wild life, generally catches our animals unprepared, and they are put to all kinds of shifts to find food and escape their enemies, the more open and exposed the districts, the greater their difficulties. Where there are thick woods and hedgerows, and above all running water, birds and beasts alike can find dry earth in which to peck and scratch, or green things to nibble and water to drink. But on the great chalk downs a snow-storm seems to drive from the open country every living creature that dares to move at all. The first day after a heavy fall the hares, which allow the snow to cover them, all but a tiny hole made by their warm breath, do not stir only toward noon, if the sun shines out they make a small opening to face the beams, and perhaps another in the afternoon, at a different angle to the surface, to catch the last slanting rays. But soon hunger forces the hares to leave their snug snow-holes, and they find their way to the cabbage or turnip gardens. Squirrels, which are often supposed to hibernate, retire to their nests only in very severe and prolonged frosts. A slight fall of snow only amuses them, and they will come down from their trees and scamper over the powdery heaps with immense enjoyment; what they do not like is the snow on the leaves and branches, which falls in showers as they jump from tree to tree, and betrays them to their enemies, the country boys. During a mild winter they even neglect to make a central store of nuts, instead of depositing them in big hoards near the nest, just draw them into any convenient hole they know of near. Rabbits also seem to enjoy the snow at first. They require a dry, bracing atmosphere, and sea breezes and frosts suit them; and in the morning after a snow-fall their tracks show where they have been scratching and playing in it all night. But after a deep fall they are soon in danger of starving. If there is a turnip-field near, they will scratch away the snow at the roots and soon destroy the crop; if not, or if the surface of the snow is frozen hard, they strip the bark from trees and bushes. While all the harmless animals are obliged to spend the greater part of the day and night seeking food, their enemies profit exceedingly. The stoats and weasels find that they have only to crawl down the streamside to catch any number of thrushes and soft-billed birds which crowd the banks where the water melts the snow, and little piles of feathers and a drop or two of red on the snow show where the fierce little beasts have murdered here a red-wing and there a wagtail, or even a water-hen. Water shrews, water-rats, and otters all dislike frost and snow, more, perhaps, because the streams are frozen and food is more difficult to obtain along the banks, than from any inconvenience the snow causes them. Otters, even if the rivers do not freeze, have a difficulty in finding the fish, which in cold weather sink into the deepest pools, and in case of some species burrow in the mud. So they go down to the sea coast for the cold water, and, making their homes in the coast caves or old wooden jetties and wharves, live on the fish of the coast. But often migrate to the coast in snow time, and pick up a disreputable livelihood among the rubbish of the shore. Of all effects of weather, snow makes the greatest change in animal economy in the country-side, and weeks often pass before the old order is restored.

Queer Chinese Military Customs.

The viceroys or generalissimos of the Chinese army, when he is about to start on a warlike expedition, must worship his flag. Whenever he sends away a detachment of soldiers any high military officer as a deputy, and generally, when any high military officer is about to proceed into battle, the flag of his division or brigade must be worshipped. The worship is often performed on the parade ground. The viceroys sometimes choose to sacrifice to the flag on his own private parade ground connected with his viceroy. The time selected is often about daylight or a little later. Often times the high officials, both civil and military, connected in the government, are present. It is necessary that all the officers who are to accompany the expedition should not only witness the ceremony, but take part in it. The same remark is true of the soldiers who are to be sent away or engaged in the fight. In the center of the arena is placed a table having upon it two candles, one censer and several cups of wine. The candles are lighted at the proper time. Some officer, kneeling down, holds the large flag by means of the staff, near the table. The viceroys, or officers who are to command the expedition, standing before the table and the flag, receives three sticks of lighted incense from a professor of ceremony, which he reverently places in the censer arranged between the candles. He now kneels on the ground and bows his head down three times. Some of the wine taken from the table is handed to him while he kneels, which he pours out on the ground. Then a cup of wine is dashed upon the flag, the professor or ceremony crying out, "Enfurling the flag! victory is obtained; the cavalry advancing, merit is perfected." The whole company of officers and soldiers, who had previously knelt down and bowed their heads in the prescribed manner, now simultaneously rise up with a shout, and commence their march at once for the scene or the appointed rendezvous.—(Overland Monthly.)

Fashions for Men.

The linen collar of evening dress continues the straight up effect, the points at the greatest prominence, where they almost meet, and rising gradually from the back.

The cravat of evening dress is of white lawn, one inch wide, without stitching or embroidery, or any advertisement of a like character that may be avoided.

The full-dress shirt has a wide, plain bosom, with which are worn three white pearl studs or buttons over three small, sewed-on, old-fashioned pearl buttons, the latter the more distinctive.

The gloves of full dress are of delicate pearl—undressed—and with white or self narrow cording upon the back.

The handkerchief of full dress is of fine white linen, with narrow hem-stitch which is worn over the shoulders. The muffler of full dress is in the form of an enlarged handkerchief, to be folded to a width from four to five inches, placed about the neck under the swallow-tail collar and folded across the waistcoat opening.

The buttonhole of full dress is of white flowers always. Pinks, chrysanthemums, orchids, hyacinths, gardenias, or whatever may be the prevalent flower—but always white.

T. G. JULIAN.

Not long ago in a restaurant, we had occasion to speak approvingly of a pretty waitress who can open a score of systems in four minutes. Our friend, who was dining with us, said, with a far away financial expression, that he knew another girl who could eat them in three minutes and a half by a stop-watch.

We want every mother to know that croup can be prevented. True croup never appears without a warning. The first symptom is hoarseness, then the child appears to have taken cold or a cold may have accompanied the hoarseness from the start. After that a peculiar rough cough is developed, which is followed by the croup. The best time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse; a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will prevent the attack. Even after the rough cough has appeared, the disease may be prevented by using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Only one safe way is to keep a 50 cent bottle of the Remedy in the house for use whenever the symptoms of the disease appear. For sale by T. G. Julian.

It is reported on what have reason to believe good authority, that Mr. Charles Dyer, a wide-awake and very popular business man, will January 1st take an interest in the Gazette Company. Charlie is a hustler and will bring to the Gazette an abundance of energy and business tact that will be anything but a disadvantage to it.

The Kentucky Midland railroad has asked the Circuit Judge, John E. Cooper, for a writ of mandamus to compel County Clerk Geo. A. Whitney to enter upon the subscription books of said railroad the subscription to the amount of $100,000, voted by Montgomery county at the late election, held for that purpose. The case will be at once taken up to the Court of Appeals let Judge Cooper decide as he may in the case.

Young man, beware you speak evil of or slightly about any woman, it matters not who she may be, think of what if she should be your mother, wife, sister or daughter. She is related to some one who may be just as good or perhaps better than yourself. No true gentleman can afford to speak ill of any woman who makes the least pretense to respectability.

Speak of woman and your Creator only with reverence.

Joe Mullanion was arrested, "so the papers say," in Pittsburg, on Wednesday, charged with robbing a woman-nate. Mullanion's insatiable desire to keep himself before the public has led him to adopt some peculiar ways of advertising himself, and this may be one of them. Joe will lie, but we do not believe he will steal. In a business acquaintance extending over two years we found him strictly honest. Based upon this, we are not inclined to give any credence to the statement.

Judge George W. Gist died at Washington City, last Monday night. Judge Gist was for many years a resident of this county, and served as County Judge for eight years. For a number of years past he has been a resident of Washington, but is yet remembered very kindly by a host of friends here. He was a member of the Union army as Captain and Colonel in Kentucky regiments from the beginning to the close of the war. Col. Gist's funeral took place on Thursday, at 2 p. m. The Grand Army, the Loyal Legion and the Veterans' Union honored their comrades' memory. The interment was at Arlington.

On Sunday morning while the family of W. H. H. Kokendörfer, of Frankfort, Nicholas county, were at church, the house was entered and the thieves secured $130 and a silver watch. One hundred dollars of the money belonged to Mr. Kokendörfer, and the balance to his son, B. P. Kokendörfer. Three tramps were seen by some neighbors coming from the house.

One James Crockett confined in jail for robbery, managed to raise a row there on Thursday night, and coming in contact with Logan Murphy, a prisoner from Magoffin county, under sentence of death for killing his father, sent here for safe keeping, he got into a difficulty with him. In some way Murphy secured an old pocket knife, every blade of which was broken, but which he had sharpened on the wall of his cell, and with this he cut Crockett some seven times. Only the short blades kept him from adding another to his list of murders. Crockett will soon be well.

Judge W. H. Holt, Chief Justice of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, is a busy man, who rarely finds time to leave Frankfort, where he has a beautiful home. The readers of the Louisville papers, however, every week or two read a personal notice saying that the Chief Justice is at one of the hotels in this city. For a long time the Judge could not understand how it was that the newspapers so persistently misrepresented his whereabouts. He has at last discovered that the gentleman who so frequently visits this city is a Mr. J. A. Holt, a farmer, who is said not to object to being mistaken for a celebrity.—(Courier-Journal).

On Friday night, at a called meeting of the City Council, an election was ordered for Saturday, Nov. 28th, for the purpose of taking the sense of the people whether or not they will accept the Electric Light Company's offer to furnish 15 arc lights and 45 incandescents for five years for $2,000 per year; the Electric Light Company agreeing to waive its right to more than a one year contract. We are reliably informed that the Electric Light Company offered to set around their original proposition as to take the contract for 15 arc and 45 incandescents lights for one year at $1,800, provided it did not have to go before the people for a vote. We cannot understand why the Electric Light Company can afford to make $200 difference in their bid between a vote by a full Council and a vote by the people. The people will want to know why, gentlemen.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bailey, of Fayette county, and Miss Emma Turnbull, of Winchester, are visiting Mrs. Mary Stoner in this county.

Dr. J. A. Snowden, of Wade's Mill, (may his shadow never grow less) was in the city yesterday (Court-day) and gave the Advocate a call.

Mr. T. T. Cope, of Frenchburg, was in the city a couple of days the past week looking after some legal business. He returned to his home Saturday afternoon.

Judge G. B. Swango, Register of the Land Office, passed through the city yesterday, with his family, to make his home in Frankfort, where the business of his office engages his attention.

Mrs. Geo. Hamilton Sr. started for Missouri on the 14th to join her daughter, Mrs. Woodson, who with her husband will spend the winter in Texas. They go for the benefit of Mr. Woodson, whose health is very poor.

Mrs. J. D. Reid and daughter Anna left on Friday for Thomastown, Ga., where it is proposed they shall spend the winter for the benefit of Miss Anna's health. We earnestly hope the change of climate may prove all that is hoped for in it Miss Anna's case.

Mrs. James D. Ford, of Marion County, Kansas, and Mrs. Nannie Carter, of Clover Bottom, Woodford county, were the past week visiting their Aunt, Mrs. Virginia Botts, Mrs. Botts on Friday completed her 87th year, and is very feeble. For a length of time she has been confined to the house, and as she has already outlived the four score years allotted to man, there is little probability that she will ever be much better.

For Sale.

An anthracite stove, with oven attached. Will sell cheap. Also a cooking stove for sale. Apply to Thos. Wirtz, Jeweler.

There was a large crowd in town yesterday, Court-day. About 400 cattle on the market, and these mostly those left over from last Court-day; not many good ones; the better class of oxen being noticeably scarce. Cattle sold from $2.20 to $3.40. Plug horses were a drag on the market, but few being sold. Quite a number of mules on the market, and but little demand for the poorer class. Mules from 15 to 164 hands sold from $90 to $175.

Beard, of Lexington, bought 1 pair of mules of Sam Rawls, for $300, and 1 pair of extra good ones from Will Phelps, for $350.

Twelve mules sold at Harper's stable at an average of $115, and one extra mule sold for $65.

A large crowd in town but the merchants do not report a very good business.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Governor Brown issued a Thanksgiving proclamation as follows:

"Commonwealth of Kentucky, Executive Department. In observance of a long established custom, I respectfully recommend that Thursday, the 26th day of November, be set apart as a day of thanksgiving and prayer by all the citizens of our beloved Commonwealth. Almighty God has spared us a visitation of pestilence and blessed us with peace and abundance. Let us return thanks for His great bounties and manifold mercies. Let the poor and afflicted be remembered in charities.

"In testimony whereof I have hereto set my hand and caused the great seal of the Commonwealth to be affixed.

"Done at Frankfort, this 16th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, and in the one hundredth year of our Commonwealth.

"JOHN YOUNG BROWN (L. S.)
 "By the Governor.

"JOHN W. HEADLEY,
 "Secretary of State."

Lee Fisher's barber shop is the place to go for a first-class haircut or a nice, smooth shave. He employs none but first-class workmen and guarantees satisfaction in every respect. One of the best evidences of the good work done in his shop is that his customers will go nowhere else once they have tried him. Remember the place—Mayville street, under Green, Clay & Chennault's store.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Detsy Wireman, wife of our countryman, John Wireman, died Tuesday, Nov. 3, at 11 a. m., of rheumatism, aged about 60 years. She was a consistent member of the Baptist church, and was ready to go when the summons came.—Hazel Herald.

Mrs. Mildred Priest, aged 87 years, died at the home of her son, S. S. Priest, near Sideview, this county, on Wednesday, Nov. 11th, 1891.

She was married to Daniel Priest in 1823, and was the mother of six children, only two of whom, S. S. and Thomas W. survive her. For many years she was a member of the Old School Baptist church, and was one of the veritable mothers of Israel.

Ann Millard, as she was called by all, had a strong hold upon the affections of all who knew her. Her gentle, pure life was such as to show to the world around her that her heart's desire was to show forth the love and truth of the religion of the blessed Christ. Too few such lives are seen in the world around us, and their full worth is only appreciated by us when they have been ended. Her burial took place on Thursday in our beautiful cemetery.

FOR PRESIDENT.

JOHN C. CARLISLE,
OF Kentucky.

Breadstuffs to the amount of $24,863.334 were exported from the United States during October.

Cincinnati, Newport and Covington have twenty-seven breweries, and they are all to consolidate. A protest is now in order from those who rush the growler, against this proposed trust.

It is said some members-elect of the Legislature who have been to Frankfort to make arrangements for their stay there, report that they will have to pay more for board than they will receive as salary.

Asbury Bailey is experimenting with watermelons with a view to getting a variety that will delay its ripening until the November elections. If he succeeds, his fortune is made, and the whole Republican party in Kentucky will rise up and called him blessed.—[Adairville Times.

The Democrats of New Orleans elected delegates to the convention for the nomination of State officers. Ex-Governor McEnery carried the city by 11,000 majority. The opposition, composed of anti-lottery elements, supported F. L. Adams, President of the Farmers' Alliance, of Louisiana.

A delegate to the Farmers' Alliance Convention at Elizabethtown wanted to know if a person under twenty-one years of age could hold office in the Alliance under the new Constitution of Kentucky. The new Constitution was very largely made to order for the Alliance, but the instrument fails to cover this point after all.—[Courier-Journal.

A squad of police headed by Inspector Hubbard, made the Chicago Anarchists display the American flag at their memorial meeting in that city Wednesday night. For a while it looked as if there would be a riot. Mrs. Lucy Parsons was present, and used all her lung power to have the officers murdered by the red-flag blatherers, but cool-headed policemen and a few prudent men in the audience prevented bloodshed.

Max O'Hell does not believe in the typical American man, but is very sure that the American woman is very typical. "In England you will see John Bull leading the way," he writes. "Meek and demure, with her eyes cast down, follows Mrs. John Bull. In France you will see Monsieur and Madame arrive together, talking and smiling at each other, though married. Equal footing. But in America! Oh, in America, behold the dignified, nay, the majestic entry of Mrs. Jonathan, a perfect queen going toward her throne, bestowing a glance on he subjects right and left, and—Jonathan behind."

Donn Platt, the well-known editor and newspaper writer, died at his home near Cleveland, Ohio, Tuesday last. He was a power in the land in his day. Whilst he could be as tender as a woman when he desired it, he could as well be as bitter and as vengeful as any man who ever handled a pen, if an adversary called forth his ire. He was a Democrat of the old school, and grandly he supported the principles of the party to which he had pinned his faith. As a newspaper correspondent, he was probably without a peer, indeed, McCulloch, Redfield and Townsend may be classed with him.

There must be something in the Hurst Home Insurance Company, after all, since a simple announcement in the papers by the General Agent, that they proposed to begin work in this county, caused the agents of the capital companies to write several columns at a cost of several dollars, and, after falling to down Prof. Hurst with the pen, to appeal to the Insurance Bureau to protect them from these farmers. We predict that this will be a failure, also. This company is not doing business for profit, but solely for protection, while the insurance laws were organized to protect the people from these speculators and not to protect the people from the people.

HORSE AND TRACK.

Six of the got of Axtell will be trained on the Terre Haute track next season.

The dam of Hal Pointer and two sisters to Brown Hal have been booked to Direct.

Electioneer has now 94 in the 2:30 list and more coming. He has put in 34 this year.

But one two-year-old has beaten Ralph Wilkes' mile in 2:18, and but two have equaled it.

The two-year-old colt Birchwood, by Nutwood, stepped a mile at Independence the other day in 2:18.

C. W. Williams has received a Caffrey sulky made to order for Allerton, which weigh but thirty-nine pounds.

Electioneer was bred to but one daughter of George Wilkes and one daughter of Nutwood. The produce was Advertiser, 2:16, and Arion, 2:10, respectively.

Monroe Salisbury, Pleasanton, Cal., has bred more 2:15 performers than any other breeder. They are Direct, (p), 2:06; Margaret S., (4), 2:12; Homestake, 2:14; and Lucas, 2:14.

Director's oldest colts are but six years old, and of the lot he has ten trotters and two pacers in the 2:30 list, while four of the trotters and one of the pacers have records better than 2:20.

The American Trotter says: "California holds the yearling, two-year-old, four-year-old, five-year-old and world's trotting records; Iowa holds the stallion record, and Kentucky holds—it's breath."

Arion, the best colt ever foaled, has reduced the two-year-old record to 2:10. The way he is lowering his mark at each trial, the stallion record seems almost in reach of this wonderful son of Electioneer.

The records of 1891 are almost countless. To date sixteen trotters have entered the 2:15 list, while 102 trotters and 61 pacers have entered the 2:20 list. Nearly 1,200 trotters and pacers have entered the 2:30 list.

Marcus Daly, the multifold millionaire of Montana, is what some people would term horse-mad. He believes Montana will produce as good horses as Kentucky or California, and proposes to invest $1,000,000 in the breeding and development of trotters and runners.

When Electioneer's first colts came at Palo Alto a number were ennobled. Every one that was left entire has proven a sire of 2:30 performers. Clay, 2:25, was one Palo Alto but people were certain before the rest, but that the first of his progeny, Hazel, has made a record of 2:28 in Stockton, there will be a large number to follow suit.

The interesting fact is noted that Delmar, by Electioneer, that took a record of 2:20 at the Lexington meeting, met with an accident in his two-year-old form by which he cut a tendon square off on his left hind leg. He was then owned by John Madden, who after the accident sold him to W. E. Spler, of Glen Falls, N. Y. Delmar has this year started in six races in the 2:30 class and has finally entered the 2:20 list.

The new 2:20 performers of the year are divided among the trotting families as follows: The Wilkes family with 27, the Belmont with 10, the Electioneer with 7, the Almost with 4, the Woodford Mambrino with 4, the Strathmore with 4, the Dictator with 3, the Pilot Jr. and Elbert with 3 each. The fact that of the sixty-seven new 2:20 performers not one has a thoroughbred mare for a dam, is also worthy of note.

It is not generally known that the two-year-old champion Arion came very near being owned in Cleveland by J. E. French. The story runs in this vein: A year ago Mr. French asked J. C. Sibley, who was then on his way to California, to pick out a colt by Electioneer, for him. After a time he heard from Mr. Sibley, the latter's selection being a bay colt by Electioneer, out of Manette, and the price $2,500. It took Mr. Lathrop some time to get down to that figure, and finally an option was secured until Mr. French saw the youngster. While Mr. French was on his way to California the future champion injured one of his hind ankles, and when the would-be purchaser saw her he hesitated about giving $2,500 for a yearling with a big ankle. The sale was not made. The colt remained at Palo Alto and now has a two-year-old record of 2:14.

Will buy choice of twenty different colors of All-Wool Kersey Overcoats—every one a gem. We have made a special effort to place these coats on the market at that price, and you will find them excellent values. There is not one in the entire lot that you can buy elsewhere for less than from $13 to $15. We have searched the markets to find just such overcoats as we now offer and are satisfied that you will be pleased with the quality, style and price. Do not be led off by false goods. No doubt there will be imitators who will advertise just as good an overcoat for $9.75 or $9.87, but do not be deceived: AS GOOD AN OVERCOAT AS WE OFFER CAN'T BE PRODUCED FOR LESS MONEY.

THERE IS NO MISTAKE ABOUT IT!

We have the best boot in the market. This is a broad assertion, but we honestly believe that there never was a lot of boots in this section of the country as good as our "OAK TAN COARSE-FINE BOOTS." There are hundreds of our customers who have bought them that believe the same way. If you have't tried a pair, now is your chance. Come and examine them.

C. W. CARPENTER,

MASONIC TEMPLE,

BEGAN ON

Saturday Morning, October 31,

A GRAND PEREMPTORY

Closing-Out Sale!

OF HIS MAGNIFICENT STOCK

To Quit Business In Mt. Sterling.

The intention is to clear out the goods in the several departments in as short a time as possible, and prices are not to stand in the way. There will be no auction sales whatever, but the sacrifice will be even greater at retail across the counter.

It will be the opportunity of a life-time to buy goods at wholesale, and even less than wholesale prices. The goods are to be sold and the business closed at once. You can't afford to miss it, but should lay in your supplies now, for present and future use.

When he is gone the prices for first-class Dry Goods will be put up to the old figures prevailing when he came, ten years ago.

All store fixtures will be for sale. Gas machine and gas fixtures, stoves, tables, show cases, shelving, desks, safe, cabinet, wall paper racks, etc., etc.

This announcement will be a surprise to some, but the move has been carefully considered and the resolution as taken is final and absolute.

CATTLE AND DAIRY NOTES.

Good feeders are eagerly inquired after.

Montana's sales of cattle this year amounts to $7,000,000 or $8,000,000.

When the milk is drawn, take it out of the stable or cow yard at once.

The cow appreciates a comfortable place in winter and so does the milker. The Cherokee Strip is now free cattle, except those belonging to the Cherokees.

If milk is contaminated had butter and cheese must be the result. Hence the necessity of cleanliness.

Where roots have been fed for years, the silo has not yet got a foothold. Roots will not to say the least.

The Home, Land & Cattle Co., of St. Louis recently 338 head of 1,142 pound wintered Texas cattle at $4.25.

There is no profit in breeding a blue-blooded calf and then allowing it to forage around a straw stack all winter.

A cow that jumps fences needs attention, but not as much in the way of pokes, blinders, knee bands, etc., as plenty of food.

And now there is a chance for our hogs in Austria. On with the gate openings, let the great American porker be unconfined!

Don't spare the knife on any animal that will have a tendency to lower the standard of your herd rather than to improve it.

While it is best always to push the fattening, there is nothing gained by feeding stock at any time, more than they will eat up clean.

A cow that cares nothing for ordinary fences is a nuisance, while the corn field holds out much better promises than the cow pasture.

All along the line of production the principle will hold good that quality governs price and that profit is found only in producing the best.

The question of "dehorning" cattle is greatly agitated among stockyard men, ranchmen, and all who have charge of the animals in life.

Somebody talks of scrub feed. Timely, exceedingly timely. Scrub feed has made many a scrub cow scrubber than she need to have been.

A bunch of steers that are all about the same size and color, catch the eye of a dealer much more readily than if the animals are of all sizes and colors.

Market the scrub bull this fall, and arrange to commence breeding with a pure-bred of some of the better breeds. Scrub hogs, cattle or horses do not pay.

It is the casine left in the butter that causes it to sour and spoil. Remove all of the casine and pure butter will keep sweet and fresh indefinitely, it protected from the air.

Choice beef cattle that are considerably above the average quality can always be sold at a very good price a short time before the holidays. But they must be in prime condition.

The cow that the farmer wants is one that will yield him a good profit with ordinary care. He has no disposition to put a cow to bed and tuck her in, or to feed it on gruel.

The man who complains that his cows are unruly can safely be set down as a poor farmer, and very often he is a cruel one, who deserves punishment. Most unruly cows are made so by hunger.

One good and effectual remedy to remove warts is to wait until she is dry, then wash them thoroughly with a solution of sal ammoniac and camphor; before she becomes fresh they will have entirely disappeared.

There will be a vast deal of cattle feeding done on a small scale in Nebraska and Kansas this fall and winter. Every farmer who can fatten them from five to one hundred steers will be hunting for feeders. So says the Northwestern Stock Journal.

It is easy enough to make any human man's heart ache to note how the average farmer raises his calves; not one calf in a hundred has a fair chance for itself, says Hoard's Dairyman. The burning sun on their tender, thin skins, tormented with flies, given no food whatever that their baby stomach can digest and assimilate, they advertise the stupid inhumanity of the owner.

Shiftless Tricks for a Farmer.

To plant more acres than can be taken care of.

To work with poor tools and to sow poor seed.

To buy at public sales what is not needed, because it sells cheap.

It is shiftless to keep poor stock. A poor cow eats as much as a good one.

To allow the hogs and sheep to wander at their own sweet will over their owner's and his neighbor's premises.

To let the cattle fodder themselves at the haystack. It saves a little labor, but the waste will make their owner poor.

To leave tools of any kind lying out in the weather; to put them away uncleaned, or to loan them to shiftless or careless neighbors.

To turn the cattle out into the bare fields in cold weather when there is nothing for them to eat there, and they lose flesh shivering in the cold.

It is shiftless to allow weeds to occupy any portion of the farm, and very shiftless to allow bushes to occupy several rods of ground along the fence rows.

To plant an orchard and then to allow cattle to browse the trees; to leave vacant places in a young orchard; to allow a young orchard to remain in grass.

To wade through mud to the barn and outbuildings when good dry paths can so easily be made. To pay heavy doctor's bills for wife and children because their feet became wet through lack of good paths.

To have no garden and to buy stale vegetables of a huckster. It is nearly as bad to have a miserable little garden, which the good wife and girl painfully weed, and secure a few stunted vegetables, when large crops could be had with little trouble, if the garden was cultivated by horse power.—G. G. Groff, in American Agriculturist.

This remedy is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise.—A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the liver and kidneys, will remove pimples, boils, salt rheum and other affections caused by impure blood.—Will drive malaria from the system and prevent as well as cure all malarial fevers.—For cure of headache, constipation and indigestion try Electric Bitters.—Entire satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.—Price 50 cts. and $1.00 a bottle at W. S. Lloyd's drug store.

One of the commonest and most stupid faults seen in stock raising is the semi-starvation of young animals, particularly calves and colts. With good care their growth is more cheaply obtained than at any other time of life, and young animals are almost sure, with ignorant farmers, to be raised on a diet that prematurely dwarfs them for life.

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. W. S. Lloyd, druggist.

A new terror of courtship has been developed at Anderson, Ind., in the case of Miss Emma Bowyer, a winsome brunette. For some days she has suffered from a supposed attack of pleurisy, but when Dr. S. F. Bordman was called in he found that one of the young lady's ribs was broken. After much questioning, the girl blushingly admitted that her beau, George Gerriek, had inflicted the injury while giving her his usual tender embrace before parting last Friday night.

At this season of the year people can not be too careful about keeping their bowels regular. Bilious and malarial diseases are often brought on by allowing the bowels to become torpid. An occasional dose of St. Patrick's Pills is all that would be required, and might prevent serious sickness. For sale by T. G. Julian.

THIRTY YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

C. H. BOGMAN, M. D.

The well-known SURGEON and SPECIALIST of Cincinnati, O., formerly Resident Physician of the PHILADELPHIA GENERAL HOSPITAL, and PHYSICIAN-IN-CHARGE of the OHIO MEDICAL INSTITUTE, has for thirty years devoted his attention to the treatment of CHRONIC NERVOUS, FEMALE AND SURGICAL DISEASES, such as Bronchitis, Catarrh, Cough, Rheumatism, all diseases of the Stomach, Bowels, Rectum, Liver, Kidneys, Bladder, Sexual Organs, Heart, Nerves and Brain; diseases of the Eye and Ear, Deformities, etc.

HE WILL BE AT THE NATIONAL HOTEL, MT. STERLING, KY., Saturday, November 28th--His 17th Regular Visit.

Returning Every Fourth Week Thereafter. CONSULTATION FREE, and examination in FREE, and he will promptly tell you all about your disease and the prospects of a cure. He undertakes no meretricious method, little or no pain; no loss of blood; no knife or caustic; the only positive cure. Diseases, many cases can be cured. Cases permanently removed from the most delicate organs by his own peculiar method, without delay. He restores all such cases. The doctor treats, with unfailing success, all forms of Recital Diseases, such as Piles, Stricture, Gonorrhea, and Ulceration of the Rectum, by a method of his own discovery, without pain or detention from business. He guarantees all cases. His interference is considered the best of judgment in all cases, and saves time, money, and health. The success attained in the treatment of the cases which he makes his specialty is truly phenomenal. Wonderful Cures have been effected in old and difficult cases which have baffled the efforts of all others. As his rooms are usually crowded it is better to call early in the day to avoid being delayed. Persons consulting him should bring from two to four ounces of their urine in a clean bottle for examination. Patients treated by mail or express, but when possible personal consultation is preferable. List of questions sent on application. All Consultations, Correspondence, and Cases Strictly Confidential. Treatment sent C. O. D. to any part of the United States and Canada. Address with postage for reply. Dr. C. H. BOGMAN, Box 703, Cincinnati, O.

THE ADVOCATE.

THE FARM AND THE FARMER.

It is estimated that eight dollars worth of fertility goes off the farm with every steer.

The best of everything raised on the farm should be kept for the use of the farmer and his family.

Pear juice, heated to 108 degrees and sealed in bottles, will not only keep well, but prove a refreshing drink in winter.

It pays to study the science of breeding farm stock. The experience of the most successful farmers is that only pure-bred sires can be profitably bred for meat or milk.

The fungus which causes the potato rot has been found in the healthy tuber. It requires moist, warm weather to develop the potato blight fungus. Spraying with the Bordeaux mixture is the remedy.

A good way to prevent a butter bowl from cracking by scalding is to take it when new, put it in a tub of water so that the inside and outside of the bowl will soak at the same time and thereafter it can be used and scalded with little danger of cracking.

In the orchard never plant deeper than the tree stood in the nursery row. Never omit applying a mulch to young trees if there is the slightest danger of a drought. Never forget that low, stout, (not stunted) trees are preferable to tall, slender ones.

The young women of Hammon, N. J., are competitors in raising chickens, and the town has more poultry than any other in the State. Under a single roof a prominent breeder has as many as 8,000 broilers at once, as well as 2,000 hens. In one season Hammon has sent 60,000 birds to market.

The experimental work attempted, at Maine and elsewhere, to determine the value of spraying to protect fruit against disease and insects, would lead to the conclusion that it is a field fruitful, to the careful, painstaking investigator. The problem is by no means solved, and there is need of caution; but at the same time it seems evident that a way may be opened to clear our orchards and vines from destructive pests.—(The Maine Farmer.)

Poultry raising is carried to some ridiculous extremes, as poultry exhibitions show. Ducks have become tame swans and the color of pheasants and partridges. The ordinary bantam fowl has been subjected to such "high breeding" that it often looks more like an eagle, a vulture, a blackbird or dove than it does like a respectable hen. Pigeons are especially absurd. Some have heads so turned that they seem to dwell under the shadow of their own tails.

When the milk or cream are held too long, although it may be in a cold temperature, in which the ordinary acidity may not be developed, a bitter taste is often developed which is imparted in butter and destroys its value. It is the opinion of our experts that this bitterness of putrefactive fermentation, which is peculiar to a cold temperature, and not active or marked as in the case of the ordinary fermentation, but is sure to manifest itself more or less rankly, according to the conditions. The remedy is, never to hold the milk for the cream to rise longer than twenty-four hours, and the cream not longer than thirty-six hours. Under specially favorable conditions and surroundings the time may possibly be extended. It is not, however, safe rule to insure sweet and good butter; the earlier churning and skimming are recommended. If the conditions for butter-making will not admit of these safe rules being applied, the conditions should be made to conform to them.—(New York Dairy Commissioner.)

Pity the cow that falls into the hands of the "natural" cow doctor, whose knowledge of a cow is self-constituted, and whose whole pharmacy of remedies is physics, bleeding and boring the horns for horn ail. One of the accomplishments of this doctor is making a cud for a cow, a half-dead, half-alive, half-rotten piece of meat, the new (7) cud. Better by far is the modern way of writing to the veterinarian of a distant agricultural paper, and awaiting the reply, which gives the cow three weeks in which to get well on her own account. The result is that the cow is not only out of the office, but the remedy for horn ail is keeping her on a nice dry bed, given stimulating drinks if she will take them, and then let her cow do the rest. The cruelties perpetrated by ignorant practitioners are often frightful, in cases of obstructed parturition. When assistance is needed beyond the usual effort, a skilled doctor should be procured. Watch him and his plans closely, and, in a similar difficulty, the owner, by care and caution, may render assistance that will be about as efficient as a professional. One thing should be avoided, that of giving a sick cow all the doses suggested by the neighborhood oracles. Give the cow half a chance for her life, and don't risk the other half by trusting to the wisdom of a quack.—(Practical Farmer.)

Opinions of the Trade South.

I find Chamberlain's medicines very excellent, particularly Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.—B. E. Etheridge, Hallettsville, Texas.

I have tried Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with great success.—R. Tanner, Waveland, Miss.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cannot be beat.—W. L. Davis, Liberty Hill, La.

I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family, and would consider it the best I have ever tried.—W. J. Flowers, Doraville, Ga. 50 cent bottles for sale by T. G. Julian.

Carelessness That Kills.

A month ago a young lady stepped on an inverted rake so that one of the iron teeth passed through her shoe and entered the fleshy part of the great toe. The wound was light and soon healed. Two weeks later she complained of unpleasant stiffness about her jaws. The physician called to attend the supposed "mumps" pronounced it lockjaw. Within two days the muscles of the lady became rigid and spasms soon followed. They were so severe that chloroform was administered to quiet the patient, but even at times it required the combined strength of four men to hold her on the bed. Four days ago the muscles of the throat became stiff and she could follow neither food nor medicine, which had to be administered through a tube inserted in the throat. She became unconscious, and gradually the respiratory muscles grew rigid and her breath was slowly stilled, until she died. The painfulness of the exact a decided and sudden death might be averted except that it is desirable, when it is remembered that the general rule upon farms is to throw down a tool as may be, when it is no longer in use. In line with this is the danger imminent, when old nails, bits of broken glass and harmful refuse is thrown away carelessly. Only a few days since a carpenter stepped on an splintered rusty nail which penetrated his shoe. Later lockjaw was revealed, and after untold agony death resulted. These cases show the need of care not only for things for which we have use, but equally for those which we may have discarded as no further value to us.—(Massachusetts Plumberman.)

STATE OF KENTUCKY, MONTGOMERY COUNTY, J. C. T.

This day personally appeared before me, a Justice of the Peace in and for the county and State aforesaid, Henderson Phipps, who made oath that two stray steers about four years old each, one a pale red, will weigh about 1,400 lbs., the other, dark red, will weigh about 1,500 lbs., neither of them having ear marks or brands, were taken up by Henderson Phipps, near his farm, on the 10th of September, 1891. I further certify that I have personally examined the said strays and value them at eighty dollars. The taker-up of said strays, Henderson Phipps' residence is near Stephens Station, Montgomery county, Kentucky. This notice has been duly recorded in my office, and a copy thereof delivered to said Henderson Phipps. This 6th day of October, 1891.

J. S. A. THOMPSON, 10-41 J. P. M. C.

Louise de Beaulieu, a famous French "vanderbilt" who, in company with her regiment, was under fire in eight battles, has been reduced to the expedient of selling matches in Paris for a living. She has a long record of heroic deeds, one of her feats of bravery being that of saving the life of a child from the sixth story of a house that was burning in the Rue St. Honore. At Champanny she lost an arm while carrying a wounded soldier to an ambulance. A London newspaper deplores her hard fate, but are the Queen's veterans of Waterloo and the Crimea much better off?

Professor Thomson.

Prof. Elihu Thomson, the man whose brain has worked out most of the mechanical ideas that have made the Thomson-Houston Company rich and famous, is only about five feet, four inches high, or perhaps a little taller. His figure is lovably slight, and his face is very young in appearance. As it is, he is a few years short of forty. He was always famed for his precocity, and he had to wait two years before he could enter the high school in Philadelphia, because he was so young. He was a professor of chemistry before he was twenty-three years old. When he was eleven years old he began experimenting with Leyden jars, and continued experiments in electricity uninterruptedly until he was thirteen years of age. He lived in Philadelphia, and when he would try his apprentice hand on his first dynamo he used to travel into the woods away from home to strip the leafy branches and get older birch to make insulating material. He ought to be worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to-day, but he is comparatively poor, and he devotes his energies to the supervision of the technical electrical work of the company exclusively. Prof. Thomson is the man whose name is joined with his in the title of the company, is not directly connected with the concern, but is a professor of physics in Philadelphia.

Curious and Accidental Cures.

A gentleman was suffering from an ulcerated sore throat, which finally became so swollen that his life was despaired of. When his household came to his bedside to bid him farewell, each person grasped his hand for a moment and then, turning, went out weeping. A pet ape, which had modestly waited till the last, then advanced and grasping the gentleman's hand for a minute, also turned and went away with his hand to his eyes. This assumption of deep grief, which it is hardly possible the animal could have really felt, was so ludicrous in its perfection, that the sick man, seized with an uncontrollable fit of laughter, which broke the ulcer in his throat, whereby his life was saved.

The great Erasmus laughed so violently while reading the Epistola Obscurum Vivorum (letters of obscure men against monks), that he broke an imposthume and saved his life.

A somewhat similar story is related of the celebrated grammarian, Urban Domergue, who had an abscess on his throat, which broke in a fit of passion with which he fell on his physician for committing a solecism in grammar. Dr. George Henson, rector of Thomas Ditton (England), was very absent-minded, so that on one occasion he went into a friend's house and, seeing no servant, he rambled over it, finally entering the room of an old lady, ill of a quinsy. He stumbled over a clothes-horse and his awkwardness made the patient burst into such a fit of laughter that the quinsy broke and she lived many years to thank him.—(American Notes and Queries.)

Buckley's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by W. S. Lloyd.

An exchange says that the men just now most in need of situations are the playwrights. This is wrong surely. There are numerous members of the last Congress in this country just dying for employment.—(Williamstown Opinion.)

For sore throat.—Saturate a flannel bandage with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bind it on the throat. It will cure and ordinary use in one night's time. For sale by T. G. Julian Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

The following would indicate that there is still hope for the paralyzed. Francis Corwin, of Paris, Indian Territory, says: "I induced Mr. Pinson, whose wife had paralysis in the face, try a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. To their great surprise before the bottle had all been used she was a great deal better. Her face had been drawn to one side, but the Pain Balm relieved all pain and soreness, and the mouth assumed its natural shape." It is also unequalled for rheumatism, lame back, sprains, swellings and lameness. 50 cent bottles for sale by T. G. Julian.

Can't Sleep Nights
Is the complaint of thousands suffering from Asthma, Consumption, Coughs, etc. Did you ever try Dr. Acker's English Remedy? It is the preparation known for all Lung Troubles. Sold on a positive guarantee at 25c and 50c. T. G. Julian, druggist.

That Terrible Cough
In the morning, hurried or difficult breathing, raising phlegm, tightness in the chest, choked pulse, chilliness in the evening or sweats at night, all or any of these are the first stages of consumption. Dr. Acker's English Cough Remedy will cure these fearful symptoms, and is sold under a positive guarantee by T. G. Julian.

A Cure For Paralysis.

Frank Cornelius, of Purcell, Ind. Ter., says: "I induced Mr. Pinson, whose wife had the paralysis in the face, to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. To their great surprise before the bottle had all been used she was a great deal better. Her face had been drawn to one side; but the Pain Balm relieved all pain and soreness, and the mouth assumed its natural shape." ## NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Winchester's new opera-house is completed, and will be opened to-night.

Henderson is to have a new industry, a sheep-wash factory. The article is made from waste tobacco.

The Kendallts, who escaped from the Georgetown jail last Monday night, have not yet been apprehended.

The official vote of Pennsylvania gives Gregg (Rep.) 414,583; Wright (Dem.) 356,431; Republican majority 58,152.

The Pension Bureau during October granted 22,946 certificates, the first payments on which aggregated $4,550,905.

Henry Seannell, owner of the Phoenix Training Stable, near Cynthiana, has failed. Liabilities, $10,000, with $5,000 assets.

White Caps threaten to visit the Police Judge of Providence, Webster county, because of his efforts to enforce the local option laws.

The annual report of the Director of the Mint shows that the coinage for the year was the largest yet, aggregating 119,547,877 pieces.

The Supreme Court has postponed, until November 30, argument in three cases involving the constitutionality of the McKinley tariff law.

Sam Small was attacked and roughly handled by a saloon keeper of Atlanta, Ga., Thursday, because of some of his harsh criticism of those who sell the "stuff."

The United States and Great Britain have agreed to submit the Bering Sea issue to a Court of Arbitration. The treaty has yet to be ratified by the United States Senate.

H. H. Blankenship, living on the head of Grassy, in this county, on Thursday of last week killed a black eagle, which measured six inches from tip to tip of wings. This is the largest one we have heard of this year.—[Hazel Green Herald.]

The Louisville Times is responsible for the following:

It is said that in Livingston county a man must answer these questions in the affirmative before he can serve on a jury:

Are you a Republican?
Are you a Baptist?
Do you chew Greenville tobacco?
Do you take your whisky straight?

Not long ago Mr. Launey Clay captured a monkey-faced owl that is a most remarkable looking bird. It has been placed on exhibition in the office of Dr. O. A. Kennedy, and is attracting attention from all who have heard of it. It is said to be the only living specimen of its kind in existence, the only other one known being on exhibition in the Smithsonian Institute at Washington. It is worth one's time to view this peculiar bird, its name, monkey-faced, indicating somewhat its appearance.—[Richmond (Ky.) Register.]

A novel sight was witnessed last week in this city, the late cause of which was the tjeletois of Mr. and Mrs. John Mason, of this county. Mrs. Mason had brought the little ones, all boys, to have their pictures taken by Mr. Schlegel, and it was in the latter's gallery that the Register on Wednesday was permitted to get a glimpse of the photograph. The little fellows were born on Nov. 6, 1890, and hence were one year old on Friday last. Their names are Alexander, Robert and Hankin. They are all blondes, are healthy, and not a particle of trouble to their parents. Their father is a son of Mr. Rankin Mason, a well known citizen of this county. Their mother was Miss Sarah Cornelison, daughter of Mr. Alex. Cornelison, also a prominent farmer. Mr. and Mrs. Mason have five other children.—[Richmond (Ky.) Register.]

An Owensboro special to the Louisville Times of Nov. 11th, says: "The Inquirer this afternoon will announce the transfer of the stock held by C. C. Givens to Wm. Foor, W. L. Stone and E. E. Owsley, and his retirement from the management of the paper. The paper will be published by the new Inquirer Publishing Company, with A. J. Casey, Wm. Foor, Henry Moise, W. L. Stone and E. E. Owsley as stockholders. Its active management will be in the hands of Casey, Stone and Owsley, who, at a meeting last night, were elected President, Secretary and Treasurer, respectively. Stone has been associated with the paper for a year as general foreman, and Owsley for four years in numerous capacities. Givens will probably engage in other business in Morganfield after January 1.

J. M. Thomas, nothing daunted by his recent losses by fire, is erecting a larger planing mill in place of the one recently burned, at Ford. He is also adding another saw mill. Owing to low water and consequent scarcity of logs, but little sawing is being done there. The upper tributaries, however, are full of logs, and a small rise will bring them out. There is so great a demand for the product of these mills they are unable to prepare it for market fast enough, and are now 150 car loads behind.—[Winchester Democrat.]

A Tennessee writer says that an arrangement has been partially concluded to keep Direct in Tennessee next year at Ashwood, the stock farm of Messrs. Polk & Brown, in Maury county. Fifty mares are booked to him at $500, in the event the arrangement is consummated. Major Campbell Brown, proprietor of Excel farm, and one of the owners of Brown, Hal, will contribute ten of these mares, and Mr. P. G. Hafford four. They are said to be a richly bred lot and probably one-half of them producers. Mr. Salisbury, who seems supremely happy over Direct's success at this place, proposes, however, before retiring him to the stud to take him to California to pace a match race against Adonis, as Mr. Hickok thinks he can make the event interesting.

Report of County Superintendent.

District No. 8, Spencer—Reports 85 pupils, children; draws $192.11; a first-class district with a first-class teacher and one of the best working schools in the county; highest number, 58; lowest, 35; present, 45; a nice new school house near the church, and nearly all of the pupils attend the Sabbath school every Sabbath; there were fourteen bright little boys and girls in the chart class, and they all recited nicely; in this district such a thing as a tax is never called for; the patrons go down in their pockets and get out the amount of money needed; W. H. Squires is the teacher, and his school will continue nine months; Jas. Lockridge, Joseph Coons and J. C. B. Duff, trustees; all good men for the business.

Willoughby Institute, No. 30—Reports 56; draws $126.56; Miss Lillie Wilburn, the popular young teacher; her first school; has first-class qualifications; and is giving general satisfaction; this is a new district; a new house being built by the people of the district; they look upon it with a national pride; highest number in school, 32; lowest, 13; present, 18; the trustees, Green Martin, J. S. Willoughby and James Anderson, together with that over-zealous worker, Mr. W. W. W., deserve great credit for the founding of this institute of learning.

District No. 13, Jeffersonville—Reports 112 children; draws $253.12; Miss Lillie F. Cooper, Breckenridge county, teacher, is very enthusiastic, and her work is indeed satisfactory to all; Miss Lillie is a very competent and experienced teacher, and deserves much credit for what she is doing for these children; trustees, W. R. Hazelrigg, Albert Anderson and Campbell Gibson; all good school men, who seem to be proud of their school; house has been repaired some; everything that was needed; highest number in school, 84; lowest 42; present, 66; Miss Mary Davis, a pupil, assistant during first three months.

District No. 3, Siderview—Reports 72 children; draws from the State $162.72; Miss Sallie McDonald, the popular teacher, is very thorough and interesting in her work; the school this year is about such as these people always have, having settled the question long ago that none but first-class teachers need apply; highest number, 35; lowest, 22; present, 33; trustees, Geo. Denton, Patrick King and S. S. Priest, all of whom the teacher and the pupils would like to see occasionally.

Duff's District, No. 7—Reports 100 pupils, children; draws $226 from the State; highest number, 52; lowest, 35; present, 40; teacher, Miss Lola Anderson; her first school; very industrious and very anxious to succeed; patrons all pleased with the school; trustees, who seldom visit the school, are Dr. Pierce, Capt. H. D. Myers and A. Duff; house has been very much improved by private subscription; good blackboard and lots of good coal; district should buy new furniture next year.

Sweet mixed pickle in barrels at BARNES' Kentucky State Alliance.

Persuant to adjournment last year the annual State Alliance convened in Elizabethtown on November 10th. Hon. A. B. Montgomery, of Hardin county, delivered the welcome address, which was responded to by J. C. Roberts, of Tennessee. The body continued in session until noon Friday.

Contrary to the predictions of many and especially those of a part of the press, the meeting was an unusually harmonious one. Factions that might have caused any dissension, were promptly held at bay, and the wise, conservative element ruled serenely. Jars that are quite common to such meetings were not forthcoming. The most hopeful could not have desired a more harmonious meeting.

Among the distinguished visitors present were J. H. McDowell and J. C. Roberts, of Tennessee, Col. Powers, of Indiana, and "Stump" Ashby, of Texas; all of whom made public speeches during the meeting.

President T. T. Gardner presided over the meeting, and his fairness in all of his rulings not only added to his already large host of friends, but added largely in preserving perfect peace.

In the election of officers, T. T. Gardner, of Ballard county was re-elected President; John G. Blair, of Nicholas county, Vice President, and Miss Mattie E. Quicksall, of Morgan county, Secretary. Miss Quicksall has been acting as Assistant Secretary for several months, by appointment, and her efficient work was highly complimented by her election to the position of Secretary. She very easily defeated six male candidates. The office of Treasurer was abolished, and the Secretary was made Treasurer. The office of State Lecturer, as well as some other important offices, was also abolished. The lecturing is now to be done through the Congressional District Lecturers.

Many resolutions were passed, among the most important of which was one endorsing the Growers' Warehouse Association, of Louisville. The resolution was strong, and was carried unanimously. A resolution was also passed petitioning the Legislature to provide separate coaches for white and colored passengers.

Three delegates were elected to attend the national meeting, which convenes at Indianapolis this week. The meeting closed as harmoniously as it began, and the delegates returned home enthusiastic and highly pleased. It is now a well settled fact that the Alliance of Kentucky will not go into politics.

We want every mother to know that croup can be prevented. True croup never appears without a warning. The first symptom is hoarseness, then the child appears to have taken cold or a cold may have accompanied the hoarseness from the start. After that a peculiar rough cough is developed, which is followed by the croup. The best time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse; a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy would prevent the attack. Even after the rough cough has appeared, the disease may be prevented by using this remedy as directed. The only safe way is to keep a 50 cent bottle of the Remedy in the house for use when ever the symptoms of the disease appear. For sale by T. G. Julian.

Do Not Suffer Any Longer.

Knowing that a cough can be checked in a day, and the first stages of consumption broken in a week, we hereby guarantee Dr. Acker's English Cough Remedy, and will refund the money to all who buy, take it as per directions, and do not find our statement correct. T. G. JULIAN.

THE ADVOCATE.

The Growers' Tobacco Warehouse made application to the Tobacco Exchange for membership on Saturday. The action on their part was found necessary by the Growers' Association since they were practically boycotted by the buyers. We are informed that this movement cannot be consummated till a meeting of the shareholders of the Growers' house, which takes place this week. President Gardner, of the State Alliance, recently does not view the proposed action of the Growers with much favor. If he is correctly reported in the following extract from the Cincinnati Enquirer:

"President Gardner was very indignant over the capitulation of the Growers' Warehouse, and when spoken to by an Enquirer reporter, said: 'After the cowardly surrender of our warehouse here, I see that there is no use trying to do anything in this city. We will at once abandon all efforts here and turn our attention to leading our house at some other point. The matter will be laid before the National Alliance, which meets at Indianapolis next week, and I think no objection will be made to the recommendation of the Kentucky Alliance that the warehouse be located at Cincinnati. Wherever it is located, it will be backed by the National Alliance, and will be run in the interest of the growers, and in opposition, so far as necessary, to the present execution in fees and costs to the producer. Ohio is a big tobacco State, and Cincinnati is also convenient to Kentucky shippers. We will make no further effort here, and I think before long will be firmly established at Cincinnati.'"

Very many farmers who were in town yesterday are as indignant as President Gardner is quoted as being. We are in no position to give our views any further information about the matter, but express the opinion that it is very doubtful if the contemplated action of the directors will be ratified by the stockholders.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Wade's Mill.

Corn is selling here at $2 per barrel. Hogs bring from 3 to 3 1/2 cents.

Miss Lizzie Lowe, of Winchester, is visiting friends and relatives here.

John A. Snowden bought of Joe A. Swope a combined horse.

Lee Hardman is buying turkeys at 61 cents. He bought about 1,000 last week.

Born, November 14th, to the wife of Thos. J. Amyx, a son—Glover Cleveland.

Robt. McKinney and wife of Mt. Sterling, are visiting at Morgan McKinney's.

John A. Frazier sold in Lexington Court-day three three-year-old mules at $95 per head.

Elder Eubank preached at Mt. Carmel the first Saturday and Sunday in the present month.

John A. Frazier bought Lee Hardman's and Joe Ramsey's old crops of tobacco at 5 cents.

David Bratton, one of our oldest and most respected citizens, is quite ill and not expected to live long.

W. P. Treadway moved from Winchester to his father's, Sam Treadway, near Grassy Lick.

The Clark county F. and L. U. will meet with Wade's Mill on Saturday next. We hope the moment will turn out in full force and give our visitors a hearty welcome.

Squire D. P. Hardman made an engagement last week to W. D. Jackson, of Winchester. C. C. Thomson and P. D. White appraised the property last Friday. Squire Hardman is one of our most prominent and influential citizens, and his many friends still hopeful that his financial embarrassment will be of short duration.

Sharpsburg Items.

Sunday was as beautiful as a summer day.

Y. M. Shannon, of Millersburg, was here this week.

Most of our citizens witnessed the eclipse of the moon Sunday evening.

Don't forget that to repeat a scandal is to repeat a sin as to originate one.

Miss Pearl Kinser is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Sue Templeman, at Louisville.

Mr. William Wright, of the Owingsville neighborhood, was here this week on business.

Prof. S. S. Pinney and County Attorney Nesbitt, of Owingsville, were in town last Saturday.

Rev. and Mrs. R. F. Caldwell and daughter, Miss Sue, were guests of Mrs. John S. Latta last Saturday.

Auctioneer Rice, of the firm of Rice & Faris, cried off the farm of J. T. Jones and J. C. Nelson, last Saturday afternoon.

Rev. R. F. Caldwell, the eightieth anniversary of whose birth will occur the 24th inst., preached an interesting and instructive sermon to a good-sized audience at the First Presbyterian church last Sunday.

The 175-acre farm of J. Clyde Nelson and Col. Tom Jones was sold at public auction last Saturday afternoon for the sum of $80.10 per acre. Ben T. Wright, was the purchaser, and it is conceded by all acquainted with this farm that he got a bargain, for the land realized much less than its actual value, probably owing to the stringency of the money market. Mr. Wright has now a desirable farm and a nice home, and it will next be in order for him to marry. Indeed, Madame Rumor reports four marriages to take place this winter, and we have been wondering if Mr. Wright is to be one of the lucky fellows.

It said that a certain citizen near Owingsville, discontinued his county paper because he gave an account of the opening of the new opera house; and now one of our g. o. p. friends (as supernumerary) to the party with which he affiliates) in a spirit of malice, criticised our last week's items merely because we made some editorial comments upon the recent elections. Verily, the fool-killer is neglecting his work in Bath. HENOS.

I still have nice line of queensware on hand that I am offering at a bargain. ED. MITCHELL.

LAND, STOCK AND CROP.

J. A. Thompson sold to Jo. C. Turley one car load of hogs at 3 1/2 cents.

Cap. Gillispie sold to E. M. Duke 10 head of yearling cattle, average 900 pounds, at 3 cents.

W. H. and Ed. Frewitt bought of Over & Sullivan 200 barrels of corn in the field at $2 per barrel.

N. P. and W. W. Gay sold to Newt Green for Bowerman, 110 head of cattle—60 at 44 cents and 50 at 45 cents; average 1,225 pounds.

John Wilson, of Bath county, sold to George Stevens a jack colt three months old for $415. This colt was sired by Expector, Jr., the property of A. S. Bridges, of this county.

Allen Prewitt and J. D. Reid bought of J. C. Scoobe 300 barrels of corn in the field at $2 per barrel. J. P. Reid also bought of Harvey Daniel 145 barrels of corn at $1.85 in the field.

The average weight of the hogs received at Chicago last month was 220 pounds. For October, 1890, it was 233 lbs.; for 1889, 258 lbs.; for 1888, 243 lbs.; for 1886, 238 lbs.; for 1885, 238 lbs. Last month's average was only two pounds heavier than for September.

S. A. Duff shipped last week to New York one car load of cattle averaging 1,500 pounds, for which he received 54 cents; one car load of steers and oxen, average 1,425 pounds, brought $4.60 per hundred. The two car loads netted him $4.15 per hundred at home.

Thos. Strong has sold to N. B. Day & Son 400 apple trees at $2 each. Also a boundary of timber estimated to make 200,000 feet, at 10¢ per hundred. Also 300,000 feet of Spruelling & Brewer at the same rate. They take all poplar, oak, ash and cucumber over fifteen inches in diameter. This will be cut at their saw mill on the ground. This is better than selling the land at $5 per acre.—(Jackson Hustler.

No happier face could be seen in the city yesterday than that of Mr. Allie Jones, of North Middletown, who will be married to-morrow to Miss Effie Evans, daughter of T. J. Evans, at the residence of her parents. The ADVOCATE extends congratulations in advance.

For Sale.

Thirty-five head of well fattened hogs, which I will sell in lots of 5 to 10, to suit purchaser.

WM. N. ANDERSON.

Louisville Tobacco Marke, Furnished by Glover & Durrett—Louisville Tobacco Warehouse.

Sales on our market for the week just closed amount to 1,863 hhds., with receipts for the same period of 443 hhds.; sales on our market since Jan'y 1st, amount to 141,928 hhds. Sales of the crop of 1890 on our market to date 99,458 hhds.

The sales of the week have embraced a few hogsheds of new burley, which have sold at prices ranging from $4.00 for trash to $16.50 for leaf. The offerings of the week have also embraced a few hogsheds of extra fine old burley, which were taken at very full values, prices having reached as high as $33.50 per 100. Some recent progress has been made in stripping the new crop, but it is not expected that the receipts will amount to much during the remainder of this month. The following quotations fairly represent our market for old burley tobacco:

Trash (dark) or damaged tobacco $2 to $3.
Colony trash - - - - - $3 to $6.
Common lugs not colony, - $3 to $4.
Colony lugs - - - - - $4 to $6.
Common leaf, - - - - - $5 to $7.
Medium to good leaf, - - - $7 to $12.
Good to fine fillers, - - - $12 to $22.
Select wrapper tobacco, - $22 to $33.

THE ADVOCATE.
PHILADELPHIA EDITORS.
NEWSPAPER CHIEFTAINS KNOWN
THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY.

Colonel Clayton McMichael's Record as a Journalist and Man of Affairs—Colonel McMichael's Physical Vigor and Literary Power—Versatile John Russell Young.

If a Philadelphia were asked to point out three of the brightest lights in the journalistic profession in the Quaker City he would at once name Colonel Clayton McMichael, Colonel Alexander K. McClure and John Russell Young. There are half a dozen others who are well known abroad and at home, but the trio mentioned constitute a group of original, dashing and brilliant thinkers.

COLONEL CLAYTON MCMICHAEL. Their fame is not bounded by any city or state lines. All three are entertaining talkers and without any discredit to their editorial powers—still better writers. Each in his turn has enjoyed the confidence and friendship, and in at least two cases, the affection of a president of the United States. In their journey through life they have rubbed up against greatness and tipped elbows with many masters.

Colonel Clayton McMichael, the editor and proprietor of The North American, was once described as "the youngest editor of the oldest daily." That was some years ago—not so many either. He is still in the prime of a vigorous manhood, but the silver threads are beginning to appear here and there. Colonel McMichael is a "working" journalist in the fullest sense of that frequently misused term. He generally reaches The North American office about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. It is not until the state house bell has tolled the hour of 5 in the morning that he finally leaves his sanctum. He has two "dens." One is on the first floor, in the rear of the business office. He generally receives visitors there during the afternoon. The other is in the sky parlor of the building, where he does his writing in the evening.

Colonel McMichael is a man of pleasant address. A stranger is at once struck with his ease and grace and gentlemanly manner. He talks sincerely and vigorously, and has an emphatic style of expressing himself that can leave no doubt as to what he means to say. He has what are sometimes called "speaking eyes." When his gaze first rests upon you it seems to penetrate through and through, but just about the time you are considering the advisability of retreating the eyes light up with a kindly and reassuring glance and you feel that you are at home and with a friend.

The late ex-President Cleveland visited Philadelphia some one mentioned the name of McMichael. Instantly the ex-president exclaimed: "Tell Colonel McMichael I am asking for him. Don't forget to convey to him my very best regards." Thereby hangs a tale. Every one acquainted with life at the national capital remembers the Colonel McMichael's reign as marshal of the district of Columbia. President Arthur, who has himself been aptly described as "the first gentleman of his time," when he selected Colonel McMichael for the post, selected a congenial gentleman who was also his warm personal friend. The position of marshal of the district at that time was raised to a plane that it had never reached before and it was made a permanent one. When Mr. Cleveland assumed the presidency he found Colonel McMichael's resignation on his desk. He refused to accept it and asked as a favor that the marshal serve out the remainder of his term—a matter of a few months. At the end of that time the president was so well pleased with the manner in which the place was filled that he urged the president to fill it in vain. Since that time, however, the kindest feeling has existed between the two gentlemen.

Colonel McMichael lives in elegant style on West Walnut street. He is fond of social life and enjoys the theater. He has had a military career that any man might be proud of. He was twice wounded in battle. He is a fluent after dinner talker, and as a writer his productions are noted for their ease, grace and vigor.

Colonel Alexander McClure, the editor of The Times, enjoys the distinction of having many enemies. For all this, no one among his contemporaries has a greater influence or wields more power than McClure. He stands over his feet in height, straight as an arrow, and in the masculine meaning of the word is really a handsome man. He has a powerful personality that gives a more than ordinary value to what he writes. A little more than ten years ago, when the McLaughlin Bros. founded The Times, McClure was made the editor in chief. The value of a name may be appreciated when it is stated that from that day to this the paper has been known as McClure's Times.

Colonel McClure is just entering the autumn of life. The snow white hair and mustache, however, should not be mistaken, because the colonel's heart is young and gay and his nature as fresh and green as it was twenty years ago. The petty cares of life apparently give him little worry and he struts along Chestnut street unconcernedly looking over the heads of ordinary people. There is a magnetism about his eye and voice that captures a great many.

Colonel McClure is very fond of rural life and generally spends the summer of each year on his late farm near Wallingford, in the suburbs of Philadelphia. The colonel claims that he is a farmer, but his friends ridicule the idea. They say the only things he cultivates are sarcasm, irony and invective. Be that as it may, the air of Wallingford generally brings the roses to the colonel's cheeks.

He is a brilliant and audacious writer, and has the credit of knowing more about inside politics than any man in Pennsylvania. Strange as it may seem, the managers of both parties and the leaders of independent movements have all been in the habit of going to him for advice and guidance. Such is the versatility of his nature that they have all deputed to him the task of writing the sometimes hopelessly in the minority never disturbs the equanimity of Colonel McClure's mind. He has a logical and convincing manner of presenting his case—whatever that case may be. He spends from eight to ten hours a day at his office, is an inveterate tobacco chewer and is passionately fond of the theater.

John Russell Young, the editor of The Evening Star, is prouder of the fact that he is a Philadelphian than of anything else in his career. He helped to found The Star about twenty years ago, and then spent eighteen years in holding diplomatic missions, executing delicate government and newspaper missions and girdling the globe. About a year ago the old love asserted itself. He went back and is now at the helm of The Star once more. He is a born journalist.

HON. JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG. list, and his writings exhibit a purity and finish that is very rare in newspaper work these days. He has the necessary knack of grasping a thought quickly. This is illustrated even in his youth. When Young was fifteen years of age The Press advertised for a "copy boy." There were fifty applicants. Each was handed a bit of copy and asked to copy it. Forney's copy to decipher. No one that was not gazed upon that copy can imagine what a mass of unintelligible hieroglyphics it was. Young was the only boy in the crowd able to read it. He was engaged at five dollars a week. A month later, through his aptitude in reporting a chance fire, he was made a reporter. He has been in the newspaper business from that day to this.

He was in Paris during the troubles some days of the commune, and wrote a ten column account of that affair. Wendell Phillips said that for purity of English and vividness of narrative it was unequalled by the productions of Macaulay. Mr. Young is short and chunky, and walks along the street in a half-musing, half abstracted manner. For some time past he has been running a series of articles in The Star on "Men of the World," giving his impressions and personal recollections of such eminent people as Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barrett, Roscoe Conkling, Abraham Lincoln and Cardinal McCloskey. His success as United States minister to China is too well known for any extended comment, while his trip around the world was General Grant's last come home history.

GEORGE BARTON. James Parton was beyond question the most popular historian of his time with the great middle class. At least 10,000,000 adult Americans never think of laboring through Bancroft and rarely look at Hildreth, yet want something far better than school histories and sentimental sketches of their great men, such as the Weems biographies, for their standard. For all such Parton was the ideal writer. He wrote for the middle million, and he did it well. An Englishman, by birth, he was as intensely American as any native; an unbeliever in revealed religion, he charmed the most orthodox, and while his views on such exciting subjects as slavery, war and the tariff were extreme even to the verge of fanaticism, he wrote biographies of Aaron Burr, Horace Greeley and Andrew Jackson that charmed men of all parties, destroyed all the old-fashioned prejudice against Thomas Jefferson, and almost interested southerners in Ben Butler as a gentleman and philanthropist. What is equally remarkable, he violated some of the strongest social rules without losing caste, and wrote a eulogistic life of Voltaire without exciting the wrath of religious editors. The charm of his style and the evident sincerity in his expression account for it.

He was born in Canterbury, England, Feb. 9, 1822, and at the age of five was taken by his widowed mother to New York, got his education there and at White Plains, and then passed a year in New Old York, spending in the year a small legacy he had received in England. He taught school awhile in Philadelphia and New York, and while in the latter city wrote an analysis of the famous "Jane Eyre," demonstrating that it was the work of a woman. This essay he sent to the Home Magazine, with many compliments. To his surprise, delight, as he tells us, it appeared in the next number of that paper, with editorial approval by W. L. Douglas. He sought the latter's acquaintance and resolved to devote his life to literature.

His salary on The Home Magazine was ten dollars per week for a long time, but he made any great success till he issued the "Life of Horace Greeley" in 1854. Thirty-five thousand copies were sold in the first "boom," and work is still in some demand. In 1857 he issued the "Life and Times of Aaron Burr," in 1859 the "Life of Andrew Jackson," "Ben Butler in New Orleans" in 1862, and the "Life of Benjamin Franklin." Many minor works followed, and in 1873 his "Life of Thomas Jefferson" produced quite a sensation.

In 1881 he published his favorite, the book to which he had devoted all his leisure hours since boyhood, "The Life of Voltaire." This work, was his labor of love. Voltaire was his hero. He had studied that author's works as no other American ever did. Critics esteem it his best work, but the general public has not yet taken hold of it as of his biographies of eminent Americans.

In 1859 Mr. Parton married the lady whose pen name was Fanny Fern—Sara Payson Willis, sister of N. P. Willis and widow of Charles S. Eldridge, of Boston. In 1872 she died and a year or two later he married her daughter and his own stepdaughter, Miss Ellen W. Eldridge. Of course there was a "discussion." Discovering that the marriage in Massachusetts was illegal they were removed to New York and had the ceremony performed again. On their return to Massachusetts there was a "complication." The legislature passed a law legalizing the marriage, but Governor Rice vetoed it. The New York marriage, however, was valid in both states. His second union was much happier than his first, and his children by that union are a boy and a girl, of fourteen and twelve years, respectively. He lived in Newburyport, Mass. after 1872 and was an active and valued citizen.

Published Attorney First Daily. Mr. Timothy Burke, one of the publishers of the first daily paper in Atlanta, has recently died in that city of old age. He was born in County Clare, Ireland, in 1807, as is believed, and removed to America in 1838. After working in New York as a shoe-maker he and a fellow countryman named Michael Lynch made a tour of the south, finally locating in Atlanta, where they remained friends till parted by death. Mr. Burke lived for a short time in Newman, Ga. In 1850 he and his partner opened the first general bookstore in Atlanta.
